

Letters can be submitted electronically via the web URL below or on provider letterhead to the e-mail noted below. While CMS is especially interested in new published literature or unpublished scientific evidence regarding the effectiveness of PET, it is still important to submit comments showing general support even if you do not have new information or references to cite.

Keys to an Effective CMS Comment Letter:

Keep your letter concise and factual. CMS is looking for any NEW published literature to support claims and statements in your comments. Ultimately, CMS is looking for any NEW published literature to support claims and statements in your comments. If you do not have any, just include the basics.

The first paragraph should include the basics:

- 1) Your full academic title and facility name and information.
- 2) The type and number of PET studies you order.

The second paragraph should include literature, key points and messages with supporting materials and references if you have any:

- 3) List how important expanded coverage is to the management of your patients.
- 4) Include specific situations and indications where PET can be or was useful.

The concluding paragraph should include what you want CMS to do:

- 1) Frame your discussion around the formal request for this reconsideration of CAG-00181R: to remove the current prospective data collection requirements for PET FDG as required for certain cancers.

Include your full contact information in case CMS wishes to follow up.
